

What is one thing you will take away from this year's PDI?

fascia/connector.
Never lose sight of this work, braiding it
into everything.
Humanist approach.
Take the time to do it right. Loved our basket making
workshop with Judy
and storytelling.
Thank you to all! A wonderful conference

Remembering that while we are teaching/learning
art, we are doing
many other things...telling our stories, healing,
building
community, more....

Loved the
flashes of inspiration!

Yes,
zoom
works!

NEA's equity
audit -
something for us to try at the state level.

We are all in this work together, supporting one another, learning from each other and sharing toward a shared goal of an inclusive equitable
access to arts
education.

Thanks for the
Inspiration!!!!

What this community is like,
and what kind of
impact I can have
doing this work.

Great examples of Arts Ed leading the way within our state agencies!

Love love loved the creative activities
with teaching
artists! Trying to hang on to that creativity and take it back into daily life
and work.

What
art+health
is CHONTAY

we are never too
busy to gather!

Find and
connect with the tribal communities
in our state.

chontay mitchell
and all of the
teaching artists:
such beautiful
energy and love

Coalition
building as a means for culturally responsive
access!

It is crucial to share resources, ideas, and models that are making real change;
to open and provide a
safe space to share,
discuss, and
reimagine; and to learn from innovative teaching artists!

Taking
the time
is essential

connecting,
listening to
understand,
the importance of
youth voice

How important it is to connect with, learn
from, and process
with arts ed
colleagues - which I already knew, but it's just been so much isolation... Thanks to those who worked so hard on the PDI this year.

Even being
thousands of miles
apart, I feel as connected and supported by this group as ever <3

This was a great virtual PDI, but I hope we do
eventually return to being in person.

A desire to connect with
this network
throughout the year.

It's so valuable
to learn from Teaching
Artists!

The importance of supporting and
including youth
voices in leadership
and arts education
